CONDUCT OF CONSOLIDATED CASES

I. Background

Pursuant to this Court's Order (Leovy ECF No. 64; Zhang ECF No. 46), Defendants Google LLC and Alphabet Inc. (collectively, "Google") moved, over Plaintiffs' objections, to consolidate the Leovy and Zhang actions on October 9, 2024. See Leovy ECF No. 70; Zhang ECF No. 49. Just hours before their opposition was due, Plaintiffs reversed course and stipulated that the two actions "shall be consolidated for all purposes under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 42(a)." Leovy ECF No. 72 at 2; Zhang ECF No. 51 at 2. The parties agreed to meet and confer "to address the conduct of the consolidated case going forward," and stated that they would "submit an additional proposal or additional proposals to the Court" by November 4. Id. The parties have met and conferred but have been unable to reach agreement.

II. Parties' Dispute

The core dispute between the parties is that Plaintiffs seek to file a consolidated complaint that may materially depart from their prior pleadings, and which they say may introduce new parties, new claims, and new allegations. Plaintiffs contend they can do so freely. But that misapprehends the law. The time for Plaintiffs to amend as of right has long since passed. In the 18 months since the case was filed, Leovy has already amended her complaint twice. And the Zhang Plaintiffs opted to oppose Google's motion to dismiss, rather than amend their complaint, several months ago. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(a)(1)(B) (amendment as a matter of course expires "21 days after service of a motion under Rule 12(b)"). Accordingly, if Plaintiffs wish to make substantive amendments to their pleadings, rather than merely consolidating them into a single complaint for administrative ease, they must seek Google's "written consent" or obtain "leave" to amend from the Court. Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(a)(2); see also, e.g., In re Wells Fargo Loan Processor Overtime Pay Litig., 2008 WL 2397424, at *3 (N.D. Cal. June 10, 2008) ("Nowhere does the court's order permit plaintiffs to amend a complaint without leave of court.

CASE No.: 5:23-CV-03440-EKL

¹ Plaintiffs have made a practice of forcing Google to prepare and file motions that they then most through capitulation. After apprising Leovy of her original complaint's deficiencies, Google was forced to file a motion to dismiss the complaint, which Leovy then mooted by amendment. Both groups of Plaintiffs opposed consolidation, forcing Google to prepare and file another motion, before they agreed to it. Now, Plaintiffs may seek to moot Google's fully-briefed and long-pending motions to dismiss, and potentially force Google to file still another motion.

The order permits filing of a complaint that consolidates the allegations of the extant complaints, no more and no less."); CDM Holding Grp., LLC v. Tidal Commerce Inc., 2024 WL 891788, at *1 (C.D. Cal. Feb. 15, 2024) ("[A]n order consolidating cases and directing the filing of a consolidated complaint does not permit adding new claims absent leave to do so."); Ramirez v. HB USA Holdings, Inc., 2021 WL 840353, at *3 (C.D. Cal. Jan. 15, 2021) (granting plaintiffs' "request to file a consolidated amended complaint," but stating that "Plaintiffs ... may not introduce new or different claims in the consolidated complaint without seeking leave to amend").

Google proposed that Plaintiffs provide an advance copy of their proposed consolidated complaint to allow Google to determine whether it consented to any substantive changes (i.e., complaint to allow Google to determine whether it consented to any substantive changes (i.e., amendments). If not, Plaintiffs would be free to seek leave of Court to amend. Such a meet and confer procedure is routinely employed for motions to amend. See, e.g., Hong Kong uCloudlink Network Tech. Ltd. v. Simo Holdings Inc., 2019 WL 1767329, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 22, 2019) (ordering parties to "meet and confer" on proposed amendments, "and, if no agreement is reached, then the parties should agree upon a reasonable briefing and hearing schedule on a motion for leave to amend"); Gonzalez v. Google, Inc., 2024 WL 3331649, at *3 (N.D. Cal. July 8, 2024) (explaining the court "ordered Plaintiffs to provide Google with a proposed Fourth Amended Complaint ... and ordered the parties to meet and confer prior to the filing of a motion for leave to amend"). Plaintiffs rejected Google's proposal, insisting they can make whatever amendments they desire, without consent from Google or the Court. That is improper.

As matters stand, motions to dismiss the operative complaints in the two constituent cases are fully briefed and set to be heard on December 18, 2024. Plaintiffs have not committed to correcting the pleading deficiencies that Google raised in those motions, but say they might address some.

III. Google's Proposal

Given the parties' dispute regarding a potential consolidated complaint, Google proposes the following, which is reflected in the attached proposed order.

Within 45 days of the Court's ruling on Plaintiffs' proposal concerning interim class counsel, Plaintiffs shall provide Google with a proposed Consolidated Complaint. Within 14 days, Google shall inform Plaintiffs whether it consents to the proposal. If it does consent, Plaintiffs shall promptly file the Consolidated Complaint. If Google does not consent, Plaintiffs will file a motion for leave to file it.

As for Google's pending motions to dismiss, Plaintiffs, again, have yet to say whether their consolidated complaint will attempt to address the pleading deficiencies Google has identified, even though Plaintiffs have known about them for months. If Plaintiffs confirm they will endeavor to do so, Google would agree that its motions are moot. But without that representation, Google believes that the parties, and the interests of efficiency, would best be served by moving forward with the motions and hearing as scheduled. Indeed, in another generative AI case, the same counsel representing the Zhang plaintiffs here advocated for that procedure. In In re OpenAI ChatGPT Litig., the parties stipulated to consolidating multiple cases when separate motions to dismiss were pending. See No. 3:23-cv-03223, ECF No. 60, at 3 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 26, 2023). In that case, Zhang's counsel here specifically asked Judge Martínez-Olguín to rule on the pending motions before the filing of any consolidated complaint, in the interest of "conserving judicial resources." Id.; see also id., ECF No. 77 at 6:12-13. Judge Martínez-Olguín took up the substance of the motions, dismissed part of Plaintiffs' complaints, and ordered that any amended complaint consolidate the remaining claims but that "[n]o additional parties or claims may be added without leave of Court or stipulation of Defendants." Id., ECF No. 104 at 12-13; see also id., ECF No. 107 at 3 (granting stipulation with modification). In the attached proposed order, Google calls for Plaintiffs to inform Google of their intentions by no later than November 22, so that the parties can then inform the Court (three weeks before the scheduled hearing) as to whether the pending motions should proceed.
